Action movies are exciting and a lot of fun to v	vatch, but they also inv	volve scenes of great risk and danger. In the language of filmmaking, dangerous action work is too dangerous for regular actors. Movie compute actors in scenes that are unsafe.	ons are called stunts. W	ho performs these stunts? This Movie producers don't like to let actors do their	own stunt work. If the a	ctors injure themselves, it can delay the production schedule. Using stunt people	also saves time. Most	t stunt people have years of experience, which enables them to perform their stuntrain the actors to perform dangerous scenes safely.	ts with a minimum of 1	risk. It would take too long to Some people who love the thrill of dangerous spo	orts such as skydiving o	r rock climbing think it would be easy to work as a stunt person. But it isn't enough	to be a risk-taker. Stunt	performers also have to know what to do if anything goes wrong.
In addition to risk-taking and meticulous attention top physical condition. Although there are a few training	n to detail and planning	nerformers, most provide only an overview of the profession. Normally, the people wh	o attend these programi	nes already have experience in dangerous sports, rescue work, or the military. So the b	est way to prepare for a	career in stunt work is to train in an area that involves strong physical conditioning an	d has an element of phy	sical danger.
Modern filmmaking techniques have changed the computer-generated images make it possible to show	stunts that would be to	oo dangerous or expensive for real stunt people to perform. Computer-generated imag	ges are often used today	to create big fight scenes, car crashes, and explosions. However, they are not alway	ys the best choice. Ma	ny audiences want to see real people perform actual stunts. Also, the rising popular that there is still plenty for stunt people in the film indu	ity of made-for-1 v mo	vies around the world ensures that there is sum picinty for stuff people in the min man		(Adapted from Strategic Reading)
