Have you ever wanted to do something different? Five years ago Will Slade read about an organisation called earth watch. Earth watch finds volunteers for expeditions to study and explore different parts of the world. Will decided to join an expedition to study elephants in Africa. "I wasn't sure about it before I went." says Will. "But in fact I really enjoyed every minute of the expedition. We slept in tents and we cooked our own food, but it was great to see the elephants and all the other animals there." He has counted birds in the rain forests of South America. He has planted trees in Europe and he has studied whales in the Pacific Ocean.

"Only my last expedition I was in Hawaii. We were on a small island. We got up at 6 a.m. every morning and had our breakfast. Then we went out in the boats and we looked for whales. We photographed the whales, counted them, and we recorded their songs. Whales sing to each other, you know. In the evenings we put all the data into the computer. It was hard work, but we had a lot of fun, and I learnt a lot, too."

26. Who does Earth watch want to find?

- A. It wants to find teachers to teach children in Africa
- B. It wants to find scientists to study elephants in Africa.

Receptionist: OK, thanks. Tyrone.

Tyrone: Thanks. Bye.

Part II:

Hi, everyone! My name is Dave. Last weekend, I had a wonderful time joining in a small volunteer campaign with lots of my schoolmates. Its name was "Go green". It was organized by my school. What we did was to make our school and three other schools in the area become greener. We planted a lot of trees in different parts of the schools. We divided into teams of six. Each group had one teacher as a leader and was responsible for a small area. Our group planted 5 small trees and 1 bigger one in my school and 9 small trees in other schools. We planted 15 trees in total! Not a small number, right? It was great to help other school. The school bus took us to those schools and we spent one and a half day to work in the three schools. I was a bit tired on the second day, but it was a lot of fun to meet some new friends. After that day, I got 2 new interesting friends!!! Also, it was a good chance for me to learn about teamwork.
